From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE.

LETTER from his Grace the Duke of Newcastle to M. Van Hoey.

SIR, Whitehall, June 3, 1746.

I Did not receive 'til the day before yesterday the letter which your excellency was pleased to honour me with, dated the 3d Instant, N. S. inclosing one which the marquis d'Argenton had wrote to you of the 26th of May.

I laid it immediately before the king, who was in the greatest astonishment at the contents of that letter, which, as well in what relates to the subject of it, as to the manner of treating it, is so contrary to his majesty's honour, and to the dignity of his crown, that his majesty cannot but consider himself as too much offended by it to make any answer to it.

You know, sir, (and so do the French ministers,) with how scrupulous an exactness his majesty has, on his part, executed the cartel agreed on between him and the most christian king, and to the utmost extent, even to the releasing on their parole all the officers in the French service, who were made prisoners within the limits of these kingdoms, and who were not his majesty's natural-born subjects, altho' the service on which they were then employed, might very justly have excused his majesty from it.

It is impossible, after this, to doubt of his majesty's sincere desire to do every thing, which the law of nations can require between powers engaged in war with each other, even beyond what is usually practised: But as to what relates to his majesty's own subjects, neither the law of nations, the cartels, nor the practice or example of any country, authorize any foreign power at war with his majesty, to intrude themselves, or to make any demand from his majesty, relating thereto. The most christian king knows too well himself the right inherent in every sovereign, to imagine that his majesty can think otherwise.

I cannot conceal from your excellency his majesty's surprize, to see that the ambassador of a power so strictly united with him, and so essentially interested in every thing that concerns the honour and security of his majesty's person and government, should charge himself with transmitting to his majesty so unheard of a demand. And I am very sorry, sir, to be obliged to acquaint you, that his majesty could not avoid complaining of it to their high mightinesses the States General, your masters.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

HOLLES NEWCASTLE.

MEMORIAL presented by the British Minister at the Hague, to the States General.

High and Mighty Lords,

THE annexed copy of the answer, written by the duke of Newcastle, by the express order of the king, will inform your high mightinesses of the step which your ambassador has ventured to take towards my court, and of the king's just displeasure thereat.

His majesty is astonished to the highest degree, to see an ambassador from your high mightinesses forget his character and belye the professions of his masters, so as to assist, at the request of a power at open war with Great-Britain, by his ministry, to transmit to his majesty a request, as unjustifiable as unheard of; and even dare to support this request, by his own intercession in favour of the head of the rebels, and his accomplices.

His majesty has commanded me to lay before your high mightinesses, in the most serious terms, his complaints against a proceeding no less injurious to his sovereignty, than derogatory to the engagements that subsist between his crown and your high mightinesses; and (as the king persuades himself) no less contrary to the invariable maxims of this state. His majesty commands me, at the same time, to demand of your high mightinesses such a distinguish'd satisfaction, as may be some way proportionable to the scandal which this proceeding has given to every true friend to the honour, liberty, and religion of the two powers.

As to the choice of this satisfaction, the king thinks he runs no risque in leaving it to the friendship and zeal of a free Protestant state, and his ally, who besides owes this justice to herself, and to her own sentiments on the occasion.

Done at the Hague, June 18, 1746. ROBERT TREVOR.

EXTRACT of the Register of the States General, on the foregoing Memorial.

THE deputies for foreign affairs, to whom the Memorial, &c. was referred, made their report. Upon which it was judged proper to send a copy of it to M. Van Hoey, and acquaint him, that their high mightinesses having inspected the papers relating to this affair, not only disapproved of, but were extremely offended by his conduct on this occasion:——That he ought to have known and considered that, as an ambassador of their high mightinesses, it did not become him to concern himself in an affair so very critical, and at the same time so odious, as the rebellion in the dominions of his Britannic majesty, with whom, as M. Van Hoey well knew, their high mightinesses are so strictly allied, as well as so nearly interested to preserve his majesty's lawful and established government, and maintain the religion, liberty, and tranquility of his kingdoms. That any enterprize against either of these must affect them in the most sensible manner; that their abhorrence of such undertakings does not permit them to suffer any person, who is invested with the character of their ambassador, to take the liberty of interceding, or supporting the intercessions of others, in favour of rebels, without the least knowlege of the States. That moreover, M. Van Hoey ought to have considered, that the intercession of the court of France, in the case in question, must naturally be more prejudicial than advantageous, since his Britannic majesty, supposing him inclined to mercy, would undoubtedly chuse to exert it of his free motion, and not by the intercession of a power with which his majesty is engaged in open war, and which, for that reaſon, has ſupported that rebellion. For theſe reaſons M. Van Hoey might legally, and indeed ought to, have excuſed himſelf from taking charge of M. D'Argenſon's letter. But having done the contrary, their High Mightineſſes diſavow it, and diſapprove his inconſiderate conduct in the higheſt degree. And, in order to remove the offence, which his conduct in ſuch an affair has ſo juſtly given to the court of Great-Britain, command him to write to the duke of Newcaſtle a decent and polite letter, to acknowlege his imprudence, confeſs the fault he has committed, and beg pardon, promiſing to behave himſelf more prudently for the future. Their High Mightineſſes expect that this letter ſhall be conceived in ſuch terms, and wrote in ſo prudent a manner, as to give entire ſatisfaction; and that he tranſmit the ſame, with a copy, to their High Mightineſſes, that they may ſee how far it anſwers their intention. As to what remains, he muſt take diligent care, for the future, not to give any juſt cauſe of ſcandal or offence to the allies of the ſtate, or embarraſs their High Mightineſſes, who being very much diſpleaſed at his ill conduct on this occaſion, as they have often been at his inconſiderate proceedings, of which diſpleaſure he has had notice by many reſolutions, will no more treat him with the ſame indulgence, if, contrary to their reaſonable expectation, he continues to purſue the ſame meaſures. For the firſt falſe ſtep he ſhall take, they ſhall have recourſe to means which ſhall make him truly ſenſible of the effects of their diſpleaſure. He muſt alſo remit an extract of this reſolution to Mr. Trevor, as an anſwer to his memorial, in hope and expectation that it may prove ſatisfactory.

COPY of M. Van Hoey's Letter to the Duke of Newcaſtle, July 4, 1746.

SIR

I Am extremely mortified, my lord, to have diſpleaſed the king your ſovereign, by tranſmitting to your excellency the letter which M. the marquis d'Argenſon had ſent to me for his majeſty. But, my lord, how could I act otherwiſe? The two courts had a ready made uſe of my miniſtry many times to convey their ſentiments to each other reciprocally on particular occaſions. If I have erred in ſending this letter to your excellency, I have not done it with a deſign to offend, for I was really of opinion (tho' I am now ſenſible that ſuch opinion was ill founded) that in this affair I did nothing more than was expected from me.

May it pleaſe your excellency to conſider, that I have not ſpoken one word in favour of the Pretender and his adherents, in my letter which accompanied that of M. the marquis d'Argenſon, but have only opened the ſubject of the letter of the miniſter of his moſt chriſtian majeſty, in the ſame manner as I have always done, in tranſmitting to the miniſters of the two kings ſuch letters as they have reciprocally ſent to me, directed for each other; and I was very far, my lord, from thinking that I ran the leaſt riſque of diſpleaſing you, when I indulged myſelf in writing to your excellency, and in the ſuperlative ſatisfaction in writing to a man whom I ſo much reſpect, maxims which are not only moſt ſacred in their nature, but moſt familiar to him; much leſs to offend ſo great a monarch, in whoſe friendſhip the republic is ſo highly honoured. I am therefore, my lord, the more emboldened to beg, that you would intercede for me with his majeſty: Do not refuſe me, my lord, your good offices to excuſe to him the imprudence which has appeared in my conduct; the uprightneſs of my intentions ſpeaks for me, and I am too ſenſible of the juſtice and goodneſs of his Britannic majeſty not to hope that, by the interpoſition of your excellency, I ſhall not continue to appear ſo criminal in the eyes of ſo magnanimous a prince.

I had juſt finiſhed this letter, when I received a reſolution of their High Mightineſſes, informing me of their diſpleaſure at my conduct, with reſpect to the ſending M. the marquis d'Argenſon's letter, and that which I had written to your excellency with it; they commanded me, at the ſame time, to write to your excellency in civil and decent terms, to acknowlege and beg pardon for my imprudence, and to be careful to act with more circumſpection for the future.

Your excellency will eaſily conceive, having already anticipated the command contained in the above-mentioned reſcript of their High mightineſſes, I ſhall, without the leaſt reluctance punctually conform thereto.

M. Van Hoey's third Letter to the Duke of Newcaſtle, of the 8th of July, 1746. Written by Order of their High Mightineſſes, to aſk Pardon for interceding in Favour of the Rebels.

SIR,

MY misfortune, my lord, to have ſo much diſpleaſed ſo great a monarch, whoſe friendſhip is ſo precious to the republic, ſo ſenſibly affects me, that I find myſelf obliged to make uſe of this opportunity, to repeat my inſtances to your excellency, that you would have the goodneſs to honour me with your interceſſion to his majeſty.——I have erred, my lord, but I love peace, mankind, and my country; I eſteem nothing uſeful which is not juſt and honeſt, and my prayers for the accompliſhment of the juſt deſires of the king your ſovereign, and for the glory of his reign, are inceſſant and ſincere. Theſe ſentiments, my lord, which are alſo your own, give me ſome ſort of title to aſpire to your friendſhip, and hope of the moſt favourable ſucceſs, from the good offices of your excellency, for my obtaining his Britannic majeſty's pardon.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

N. B. The opportunity M. Van Hoey ſpeaks of, is the demand made by M. d'Argenſon of a paſſport for a French commiſſary of war to go over to England, and negotiate an exchange of priſoners, according to the cartel of Frankfort.

TURIN, June 18.

WE hear that the Troops which are aſſembling in the dutchy of Tuſcany, are deſtin'd for an Irruption into the State of Genoa; the Emperor intending, in quality of the Grand Duke, immediately to declare War againſt that Republic.

Camp of Terheyd, July 15, N. S. Mons ſurrendered the 11th Inſtant, the Garriſon Priſoners of War. The Enemy talk now of inveſting Charleroy and St. Ghilian, at once. We juſt now hear, that yeſterday the Left of the Enemy's ſecond Line paſſed the Demer, and that they are going to take the Camp of Louvain or Park, one of the ſtrongeſt in the Low Countries; and ſome Advices ſay, that they deſign to extend between Louvain and Tirlemont, and are every Day joined by Troops from the Moſelle.

Hamburgh, July 8. It is again given out, that the Ruſſian Troops have received poſitive Orders to march for Bohemia; and that the King of Pruſſia has ordered all his Officers to repair to their Poſts.

Vienna, July 2. The Empreſs Queen has declared to the whole Conrt, that the Treaty of Alliance between her and the Court of Ruſſia was happily concluded.

The Empreſs has declared to the Miniſters of the Maritime Powers, that having no Occaſion to ſend any more troops into Italy, ſhe has reſolved to detach another Reinforcement of ſeveral Regiments of Foot and Horſe, together with a Body of Croats, to join the Army of Marſhal Bathiani.

Paris July 1. The Public here is under great Impatience to know the true Route taken by the Duke d'Anville, who commands the Breſt Fleet: For though many People are of Opinion that Expedition was deſign'd to retake Cape-Breton, there are many others who think very differently, and that it is deſtin'd be employ'd in Europe only: What confirms these last in their Way of Thinking, is, that since the 19th of the last Month, the Scotch and Irish Lords who were there at the Time of the Arrival of Lord Drummond, Elcho, &c. have disappear'd.

Vienna, June 29. Col. O Donnel, who arrived here from Italy has brought 29 Pair of Colours and three Standards. The Number of Cannon taken was Ten, and the Enemies whole Loss and Killed, Wounded and Prisoners, in the late Action, is now affirmed to be no less than 14,000 Men.

LONDON.

June 25. Letters from the Hague intimate, that M. Van Hoey will be speedily recalled from the French Court, and that M. Kalkoen will be sent to reside at Versailles, with the Character of Ambassador from their High Mightinesses.

The same Letters say, that the States have a second Time rejected the Proposals of France; and have declared they cannot propose to their Allies any Cessions whatever, without offering at the same Time proper Equivalents.

The Earl of Chesterfield will soon embark for Holland, as Ambassador Extraordinary to the States General, on Affairs of great Importance.

June 28. We are pretty well assured, that the Brest Squadron is out at Sea, and it is expected that Admiral Martin will soon come to Blows with them.

We are assured that Overtures of Peace have actually been made by the French Ministry, which were unanimously rejected by the B——sh C——l. The Terms demanded were the Restitution of CAPE-BRETON to France, and the Cession of Tuscany to Don Philip. We hear that his M——y declar'd on this Occasion, that, with Regard to the first of these Articles, he would constantly reject all Propositions in which the Restitution of so lawful a Conquest was mentioned; and as to the second, he would never sacrifice the Interest of his faithful Allies, to the Convenience of any one whomsoever.

Liverpool, June 14. By several Accounts we have from Ireland, all the Clergy, both Established and Dissenters, design to give one Tenth of their Benefices, by Way of free Gift, to his Majesty, not only to enable his Majesty to suppress the Seeds of the Rebellion, but also to carry on the present most just and necessary War to an honourable Peace: And that all concerned in the Linnen Way there will contract with the Linnen Board, and will in like Manner give a Shirt yearly, during the said War, to each of all his Majesty's common Soldiers.

June 26. When Lord Lovat was taken, he had, not about him, but amongst his Effects, a Commission from the Pretender a Lord Lieutenant of the Northern Counties, and a Patent for creating him Duke Frazer.

ANNAPOLIS.

Last Tuesday Night a Schooner Flat coming down the Bay, the Wind being hard at N. E. struck on the Bodkin Point, and fill'd. There were in her Mr. Robert Lucas, Founder, another Man, and a Boy. Mr. Lucas Died in the Boat on Wednesday Evening, the other Man was Drowned in attempting to get ashore on a Bread Cask, and the Boy was taken off the Boat on Thursday Evening, almost Dead, but is recovered.

We have several Accounts from the Northward, which were we believ'd true, that Admiral Lestock, with 16 Sail of Ships of the Line, and 40 Transports, had been lately seen near the Banks of Newfoundland.

We have certain Accounts of the safe Arrival at New-York, of the Forces raised in this Province and Virginia, all in good Health and Spirits, and that they were immediately to proceed to Albany, to join others already gone there to the Number of 1000. They are to be quarter'd at Farms about 10 or 12 Miles from Albany, which have been deserted by the Inhabitants for fear of the Indians.

We are informed that the Hon. SAMUEL WALDO, Esq; a Gentleman of New-England, who commanded in the Cape-Breton Expedition, is to Command on the present Expedition in the room of Mr. Gooch.

This Morning arrived here the Ship Matilda, Capt. Gunston, in 38 Days from Gibraltar; but brings no material News.
